

Showcasing

The intention of showcasing your home is to create a positive first impression to potential home buyers. We know that most buyers make their minds up about the property within the first few minutes. As your REALTOR I will provide you with suggestions and simple tips to prepare your home that can dramatically affect your home's perceived property value.

Remember that when showcasing your home you can never overdo it. This is a very important aspect of the selling process concentrating on the kitchen and bathrooms. There are quick and easy strategies that can dramatically affect your home's perceived property value. Remember, preparing your home for viewings will help eliminate negative first impressions which can affect the value perceived for the home.